ARCHITECTURE
Billowing Building

New York by Gehry, touted as the tallest residential building in the western hemisphere, at 76 stories of rippling steel, has opened its doors to renters and buyers. Which means that Frank Gehry—the architect behind the undulating Guggenheim Museum in Bilbao, Spain, and the (also undulating) Walt Disney Concert Hall in L.A.—can now say he's made some significant waves in Manhattan.

The building's bottom floors will house a school

TOP TO BOTTOM Now you can put yourself in the King of Pop's shoes—or at least pop a peek at them. "Neverland Lost," on view at New York City's Foley Gallery until April 6, shows off Henry Leutwyler's rare photos of objects from Michael Jackson's estate

MOVIES

Why Does Hollywood Hate Itself?

In Battle: Los Angeles, the City of Angels gets attacked by aliens. But it's hardly the first time that Tinseltown has been wiped out on film.

EARTHQUAKE
Charlton Heston sorts through the rubble after a tremor topples L.A. in this 1974 disaster flick

T2: JUDGMENT DAY
Never mind the cyborgs. A nuclear bomb turns L.A. to ashes in Sarah Connor's nightmare

INDEPENDENCE DAY
In this 1996 movie, L.A. (and New York and Washington) is blown to pieces following an attack by giant flying saucers

VOLCANO
After a volcano somehow forms underneath L.A., lava gushes down the city's boulevards

THE DAY AFTER TOMORROW
Massive tornadoes hit L.A. and take down the Capitol Records building

VERBATIM

'They're... listening to the Enema Man and Snoopy Snoopy Poop Dogg.'

ALAN SIMPSON, former Wyoming Senator, opining on the younger generation's enjoyment of Eminem and Snoopy Dogg during a discussion on Social Security

5 THINGS YOU DON'T HAVE TO WORRY ABOUT THIS WEEK

- 1. Snickerdoodle while reading the Bible. A new edition of the New American Bible will replace "booty" with "spoils of war."
- 2. Taxidermy fading into obscurity. Reality show Mounted in Alaska will display the hobby's gruesome ins and outs.
- 3. Woody Allen filming in the U.S. It's not gonna happen. He plans to shoot his next film in Rome.
- 4. Gwyneth Paltrow. The "singer" is in talks with Atlantic Records.
- 5. George Lucas' sense of shame. His plan to release each Star Wars film again (this time in 3-D) proves he has none.

TELEVISION
Voice Box

You know what the U.S. needs? Another TV singing show. On April 26, NBC will premiere The Voice, with hosts Christina Aguilera and Blake Shelton joining Cee Lo Green and Maroon 5's Adam Levine to mentor aspiring singers, one of whom will win a recording contract. But who's going to be the mean host?
